DYSPEPSIA.

Is that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a billious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fieshy and phlegmatic have Constipation, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.

There must be no procrastination nor haf-hearted determination, but the batle must begin now, not to-morrow; and re-member that opportunities once lost never returns, reminding us again of the little copy book at the old log skool house, Parson Fries, near My Pathen's—" Time once past, never returns, the moment which is lost is lost

In the midst of a season freighted with suc-ces never before attained in this Metropolis, many of the staunchest crafts have gone down, filling the auction rooms, the Sheriff's and the Marshall's sales to overflowing. The crowd of buyers place a diferent value upon goods to-day to what were the ruling rates yesterday, just as to-morrow's prices will vary and change from to-days. With alert, experienced buyers of rare judgment, pluk, audacity and ability, having unlimited command of that one thing that will buy the earth, we are able to watch and take advantage of these splendid chances and offer to men who are afraid of the insane cry of "Auction Goods" some jobs, leaders and specialties well calculated to enhance your cnances of early success-it injures no fabric to drive it through these giant engines of the Marshal and Assignee, the Sheriff and the Auction Marts of this city—it merely changes the price, from one owner who would not sell until too late to another whose rock-botom quotations move them like chaff before the wind. It was upon these same batlefields that Stewart's Artillery played with such tremen-dus effect in his early days, that led him on to auction purchases by scholars trained to the trade, educated in the costly crucible of nearly half a century, with the keen scent of a bloodhound for big concerns high up in mercantile rating, but overdrawn in bank, for houses overloaded with stock, but pressed with notes, and overdue accounts they cannot meet, gigantic marble palaces, from whose doorway to-morrow will hang the red flag of the Sheriff -it is these sledge hamers, thes corn and cob-crushers that hav filled our pages with the names of the most thoroughly posted men in this country, keen, close, shrewd, careful buyers, who understand the difference between buying cheap and paying full regular makes in the trade if they can sell at what their competitor pays, and who know well enough how people will crowd that store, whose prices are known to be always below quotations that this riter calls your attention, in the confident anticipation of a trial order on approbation, in the honest belief that your inrests and your duty lie in that direction where you can get the best value for the money.'
